EVICTED MINERS GO TO HIGHER COURT

Backed by Union in Giving Heavy Bonds for Purpose of Testing Law.

TENT COLONY CRITICISED

Appeal for Charity Based on Exaggerated Figures, Says Spokesman for Operators.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Dec. 22.—More than eighty striking miners who have been evicted from homes owned by coal companies in this region have appealed their cases to the Circuit Court from the minor courts within the last two days. This developed to-day when clerks in the office of Sheriff Blankenship were making up their reports.

Forty-five of the miners were employed by the Howard Collieries Company, and thirty-nine by the Williamson Coal and Coke Company. It was said that they were required to give bond in each case equaling a year's rent with interest. The total amount of the bonds was in excess of $20,000.

This move on the part of the union has been expected by those in touch with the situation. Attorneys for the union have held that miners occupying company houses can only be dispossessed through the regular processes of the State laws. Some coal operators have contended that houses at the mine are parts of the company's plant and that when an employee, for any reason, leaves the employ of the company, he automatically relinquishes possession of the house, much as he would give up certain tools owned by the company and which he had used in his work.

A statement charging the United Mine Workers with misrepresenting the facts of the soft coal strike in the Mingo county field was given to the press at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday by George Byrne, editor of the Daily News, of Williams, W. Va.

Presumably speaking with the approval of the operators, Mr. Byrne objected especially to the assertion that the mine workers have 10,000 persons, including 4,973 children and 1,320 women, in tent colonies in Mingo county. On the strength of this story, said Mr. Byrne, the strikers have gathered, for Christmas entertainment for the children, contributions reported to total $10,000. He said no one could object to giving to the children plenty of Christmas cheer, but that the mine workers' "claims as to the number of people living in the tents are so far removed from the facts that their solicitations practically amount to a fraud upon the public."

Mr. Byrne gave what he said to be the real figures, reported by Dr. George W. Taylor, chief sanitary engineer of the State Department of Health, who with Major Drake of the Nineteenth United States Infantry, made a count last week. According to this report there were only 117 tents in the six colonies in Mingo county and they contained eighty-seven men, seventy-three women and 205 children, or 395 persons all told. The tents were erected by the United Mine Workers to house strikers and their families who were ejected by the operators from the "company houses" because of the strike.

BLUEJACKETS ON FURLOUGH. Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. NEWPORT, Dec. 22.—Six hundred apprentice seamen of the training station here left for New York to-night to enjoy their holiday furlough. Fifteen hundred in all are on leave to-day from the station.

Bluejackets everywhere are travelling for their homes if possible and every courtesy is being extended by the railroad officials.

FEAR BALLOONISTS PERISHED IN FOREST

Naval Officials Practically Abandon Hope of Three Officers Being Alive.

Hope that the three naval balloonists who sailed away from the Rockaway Point naval air station December 13 and vanished over Wells, N. Y., the following day are still alive dwindled away last night and was practically abandoned. Officers at the Rockaway station reluctantly expressed the belief that the three Lieutenants—Walter Hinton, A. L. Kloor and Stephen Farrell—who were in the missing balloon are dead somewhere in the depths of the Adirondack forests. It was stated positively that the balloon could not have remained in the air more than seventy-two hours at most, and that therefore the three men must have been forced down not later than noon on December 15.

What happened when the supply of gas was exhausted by rapid changes in temperature and forced ascents or descents, is open to conjecture. A safe landing and a fight for life in the terrific storms that have swept the mountain regions, or a landing under conditions that sent the balloon crashing down to bury its passengers in the wreckage—both these were considered as possible endings for the endurance test that began at noon a week ago last Monday.

The majority of officers at Rockaway were of the belief that the A-558, as the balloon is listed in the records, made a safe landing, or one at least as safe as possible under the conditions, and that Lieut. Hinton and his fellow officers lost their lives in the wilderness. It was said that their supply of food never would have sustained life to this time.

The basket of the balloon carried sandwiches and coffee sufficient for about two days. The record for keeping a balloon in the air was set at twenty-four hours and a few odd minutes some time ago and, therefore, it was believed safe for the three men to sail off with enough food for a trip of that length. A few sandwiches and a quart or two of coffee were taken along to provide a safety factor. Because the northern regions over which the prevailing winds would carry the balloon are settled thickly enough to make a landing near a hamlet possible under almost any condition, the balloonists carried no firearms and, therefore, if the theory that they dropped into the heart of the forests is correct, they would have no means of providing themselves with game.

While the atmosphere of the naval air station on the ocean front was one of deep concern, there was no slackening in the effort that is being made to locate the missing craft. Lieut. Albert E. Evans, noted balloonist, airplane pilot and dirigible expert, was reported as having arrived at Ottawa from Rockaway to enlist the aid of Canadian Government officials.

CHILE HAS NEW PRESIDENT. SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 22.—Arturo Alessandri will be inaugurated to-morrow as President of Chile, succeeding Juan Luis di San Fuentes.

TUGBOAT STOLEN BY BOOTLEGGERS

"Dutch John," fireman on the tugboat Newark, climbed aboard Tuesday night while the tug was moored at a Jersey City dock, looked about and found no one aboard, went to his bunk and turned in. A little later, he told the police, he was awakened and saw three men file by. One of them locked the door of his cabin. Yesterday morning "Dutch John" woke up and found the tug had been taken to the foot of Thirtieth street, East River. That was all he knew.

Capt. J. J. Ambler, manager of the Newark and New York Tugboat Company, wanted to know more. He feels certain that the tug was stolen by bootleggers who were concerned with getting Federal prohibition enforcement agent. Three prohibition agents on the staff of Capt. Eugene E. Merrill, in charge of the Brooklyn office, were dismissed yesterday upon orders received from Washington by Dan J. Chapin, supervising Federal prohibition enforcement agent. Capt. Merrill said the charges against the men dealt with their alleged friendly relations with liquor dealers. They are Marshall Haynes, John Curtin and John Sheehan.

Mr. Chapin visited the Brooklyn office yesterday for the first time. He told Capt. Merrill that his squad would be increased—Brooklyn at present has only twenty-three enforcement agents—and said that other changes in the personnel of the New York force were probable. The New York force and United States Attorney Rose of Brooklyn discussed plans for the closing of law breaking saloons.

WOULDN'T WASTE CAKE THROWING IT AT WIFE. Mrs. Florence D. McComb, a public school teacher, in her suit for separation against Leonard H. A. McComb, a salesman, cited in papers before Supreme Court Justice Benedict in Brooklyn yesterday that at one time the defendant had thrown several chunks of chocolate cake at her. McComb used the charge. "I deny that I ever threw a chocolate cake or any kind of cake at the plaintiff," he said, "as I am too fond of chocolate cake to waste it in that manner."

Justice Benedict reserved decision on Mrs. McComb's application for alimony and counsel fees pending trial of her suit. She charges her husband with cruel and inhuman treatment.
